

Making it easy to negotiate the workplace

ServiceNow offers search, map facilities

KV KURMANATH
Hyderabad, July 6

Mobility is making our lives easier. You can use search engines to find service providers, tap a map to get to a place or rate a food app on the go. But not many services are found in an office atmosphere.

A lot of services that you enjoy as a consumer are not available at the workspace. "We are bringing in those elements into office to offer employees comfort, making them more efficient. We are using machine learning solutions to make it possible," Allan Leinwand, Chief Technology Officer of ServiceNow, a US-based IT, Security and Intelligent applications provider, told BusinessLine.

The firm, which has 6,675 employees globally, has a research and development centre in Hyderabad.

"People use search engines to find answers to several queries. You approach different departments for different queries. Instead, a common search option would help employees quickly clear their doubts — ranging from technical issues to HR," he said.

Leinwand sees a generational shift in the workforce, which is equipped with powerful mobility technologies. "The shift is driven by mobility penetration and ease of use of those devices. Machine Learning is predicting answers for us, increasing consumer experience. We are trying to bring this to work place," he said.

Customer onboarding

Leinwand said ServiceNow helps its clients reduce time to onboard a new employee. "There are several tasks involved. For finding a seat for new employees, giving a badge, assigning IT infrastructure and enrolling them on the payroll, companies spend tens of hours on completing onboarding. We can make it happen in less than an hour as our solution automates the whole process," he said.

The Hyderabad centre, which began operations in 2013 with only two employees, now has over 500 now. "We are hiring aggressively in India," he said, without indicating any number.

HTC's June sales slump 68% to $72 million

REUTERS

Taipei, July 6

Taiwanese smartphone maker HTC Corp said its sales fell nearly 68 per cent in June, its biggest slump in more than two years, as the struggling firm continues to lose customers amid intensifying competition with nimbler manufacturing rivals.

Once a favourite with consumers and investors, HTC's popularity has dwindled with the emergence of rivals such as Apple, Samsung Electronics, and more recently China's Xiaomi Corp.

HTC said its June sales fell to $72 million ($72 million), from $6.9 billion a year ago and $2.45 billion in May.

"In the high-end segment, the sales of their flagship
